Beyond Etruscan and Roman Bronzes: New Discoveries at San Casciano dei Bagni

This lecture presents the latest discoveries at San Casciano dei Bagni (Siena, Italy) in the Etrusco-Roman thermo-mineral sanctuary of Bagno Grande.

The excavation in the votive deposit allowed for the discovery of three new groups of bronze offerings adding significant new evidence to our understanding of rites and cults among the shrine, including a fascinating new statue of a bronze baby holding a ball and with an Etruscan inscription mentioning the city state (or a new god?) of Chiusi.
